

REINVENTING PATIENT RECRUITMENT

Revolutionary Ideas for Clinical
Trial Success

JOAN F. BACHENHEIMER and BONNIE A. BRESCIA

GOWER

CONTENTS

Foreword	vii
Introduction	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
About the Authors	xiii
Section One: Getting Started	1
1. Putting the Patient First	3
2. Planning Your Study: Think Communication	13
3. Applied Metrics: Projecting Enrollments	21
4. Picking Good Sites	37
5. Budgeting and Contracting for Patient Recruitment	47
Section Two: Development and Implementation	65
6. The Importance of Patient Protections	67
7. Targeting the Right Patients	81
8. Site Enrollment Support	101
9. Metrics for Evaluation and Redeployment	113
10. Patient Retention	127
Section Three: Going Global	137
11. The Changing Landscape of Multinational Clinical Studies	139
12. Approaching Ethics Committees: Perspective and Opportunity	145
13. Selecting Countries, Sites and Tactics That Work	157
Section Four: Future Trends	171
14. Personalized Medicine and Biotechnology	173
15. Public Perception and Industry Leadership	183

Section Five: Appendices	189
I. Good Recruitment Practice SM : The Patients to Find the Cure	191
II. Clinical Research Coordinator Survey 2003	205
III. The Will & Why Survey (2001)	209
IV. The 2004 International Will & Why Survey	217
V. Ethics Committee Survey (6 July 2005)	227
Glossary	231
Index	271